

News Story – World Post Day

Toddlers

To celebrate World Post Day, our Toddlers became little posties for the day! They created their own special postcards, adding colourful drawings and messages before carefully placing them into envelopes. The children added Royal Mail stamps and worked together to build a post box, which they excitedly used to post their cards. One child proudly said, “I love posting!”

The excitement continued as we welcomed a special Royal Mail postal worker, who showed the children some of the equipment she uses and explained more about her important job. The children were then thrilled to explore a real Royal Mail van, climbing inside and talking about its bright red colour. One child enthusiastically exclaimed, “I love red!”

It was a wonderful day filled with hands-on learning, exploration and lots of post-themed fun!

Pre-School

Our Pre-School children celebrated World Post Day through a wonderful range of hands-on learning experiences. They developed their fine motor and early writing skills by designing personalised letters for their families using colourful pencils and a variety of materials. The children carefully placed their letters into envelopes, added stamps and practised writing their home addresses.

The children then worked collaboratively to build and decorate a large, realistic post box. They confidently identified its features, describing it as “red and black with yellow writing” and noticing the slot at the top for posting letters. One child demonstrated a wonderful understanding of how the postal system works, explaining, “The postman will come and take my letter and give it to my family at home.”

To bring their learning to life, we welcomed a special Royal Mail postal worker who gave the children a fascinating, child-friendly explanation of how letters travel from one place to another. The children were delighted to see her collect their letters and place them safely into her official mail bag.

To finish the experience, the children explored a real Royal Mail delivery vehicle, peeking inside and discovering where letters are safely stored. It was a truly memorable learning experience that helped the children understand how the postal service connects people and families in our communities.
